

ROUND-A-BOUT

By DOUGLAS HILLSIDE

Ever since she mysteriously resigned as Mayor of New Westminster in April, Beth Wood has been tipped for a top provincial government post.

The speculation was heightened at a ferry launching last month when she paid a fulsome tribute to Premier W. A. C. Bennett's Social Credit government.

And on the weekend she and her husband started tongues wagging anew when they met the premier on Salt Spring Island where he has a summer home.

Just a coincidence they ran into each other, said Mrs. Wood.

But according to an agent on the spot, the premier picked up the Woods in his car as they arrived by ferry and sped them off to his retreat.

Mrs. Wood holds one appointment from the government—a director of Simon Fraser University.

She's also expected to be the next Social Credit candidate in New Westminster where New Democratic Party MLA Ray Eddie had a close shave in the last election.

A newly-completed barn stands empty near Mount Douglas while the horse it was built for wanders somewhere in the Highlands district.

At least, that's what the owner thinks, hoping upon hope that more serious misfortune has not fallen.

HONEY in 1963 Victoria Day Parade.

going up Prospect Lake Road on the gallop.

She has not been seen since.

It is thought she may be in the Highlands near Saanich Inlet, wandering in the fields of the lower Saanich Peninsula, or perhaps even now stabled in a barn waiting to be claimed.

To Mr. Pitzer, Honey is a pet, his only horse.

He has advertised in newspapers and on radio, telephoned the Saanich police daily, and notified riding clubs.

Honey stands 14 and 2 hands, is branded on her right shoulder with a lazy (slanted) W, and has white on her back legs and her forehead.

Mr. Pitzer is offering a reward of $50 to anyone with information resulting in Honey's return. His telephone number is EV 2-3767.

Speaking of horses—this time in a different type of "corral"—Victoria car salesmen Bud Mesher had an experience on the weekend which "shook him to the very roots."

He was towing a horse trailer (complete with horse) home from the U.S., and arrived at Anacortes to board the ferry for Sidney. The Washington State Ferries Ltd. ticket-taker proceeded to collect $2.20 apiece for him and his wife, $6 for the car and $9 for the trailer, which seemed about enough. But it wasn't. An additional $4 tariff was imposed for the horse!

"For two p's," says Mesher, "I'd have pulled out of there and headed for Tsawwassen and caught the B.C. government ferry where you get better treatment."

"It's ridiculous—$9 for the trailer, and then charging you an additional $4 for the horse. Washington State must be in pretty rough shape . . ."

Widely-circulated rumors that selection committee chairman Coun. Joseph Casey and the new Saanich fire chief Joseph Sutherland are related by marriage were branded today as part of a crude whispering campaign initiated by disgruntled Saanich firemen's union members.

"It's simply not true, there is no relationship and I never laid eyes on Mr. Sutherland before the day the final interviews were held," said Coun. Casey.

"I've heard these rumors too and it's just part of the firemen's union campaign—they will do absolutely anything to block council's appointment of Mr. Sutherland."

"And the funny part of it is that he belongs to the same union. They're good union men in the Saanich department, really good union men," Coun. Casey said sarcastically.

He added that he had recognized the voices of several Saanich firemen who posed as disinterested bystanders who were critical of the appointment when phoning to radio station opinion programs.

Retired school teacher Howard H. Hall, 5149 Cordova Bay Road, wired Governor-General Vanier Saturday urging him to refuse the advice of Prime Minister Pearson on the proposed new flag. Mr. Hall says he isn't all for one flag or the other, but he's against our government tampering with a constitution which can only legally be changed when the Queen agrees to amend the BNA Act.

He says he has a stake in the constitution and the governor-general must protect the subjects' rights in this regard. Mr. Hall says his ancestors came to this continent on the Mayflower, fleeing to Canada at the time of the American revolution. One great-great-grandfather served with Nelson's fleet. Mr. Hall can fire a broadside too.

Sunday was Flag Day in the United States. After the Declaration of Independence in 1776 the U.S. Congress decided a flag should be adopted to show the unity and independence of the original 13 states. A resolution was adopted June 14, 1777, stating that the flag should have 13 alternate red and white stripes and 13 white stars on a blue field. The birth of the flag is noted by designation of the day. For obvious reasons, there is no comparable day set aside in Canada.

Blood-red dragons fairly leap out at the reader as he takes up a copy of this year's annual book published by Esquimalt Senior Secondary School.

In a superlatively designed and printed effort, The Crimson Dragon, volume 23, is dedicated to the 1964 Olympic Games in Tokyo, hence it carries a Japanese theme relished by E. H. Temple, whose message reads:

"Vice-principal for grateful school say thanks to honorable annual staff and remind all that honorable idea that life is a vale of tears is as false as honorable idea that life is a place of entertainment. Life is a place of honorable service."

Elsewhere appear the fine Japanese-style paintings and drawings of the art staff, Mary-Lou Unwin and Penny Butt.

REUNION AT GORDON HEAD

Mt. Douglas Grads Swing 'n' Sway Again

Twenty years ago Mt. Douglas High School students danced to the tunes of Glen Miller, Tommy Dorsey, the Andrews Sisters and Frank Sinatra.

Saturday night the same old tunes filled the Gordon Head Hall and the same old students were swingin' and swayin'.

The reunion, originally intended for graduates of 1944, was expanded to include all grads from 1938-48.

Organizer Mrs. Neal Craig Avis Robinson of 3127 Quadra recalled that 20 years ago ad when she was Avis Berry.

Guiana Arrests 32 in Emergency

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana (CP) — Security police searched the homes of Premier Cherrill Jagan and others during the weekend, as a hunt continued for persons who will be detained under the emergency rule of Governor Sir Richard Luyt.

The governor took over full emergency powers in British Guiana Saturday because of violence due to a four-month sugar strike. He was authorized by the British government to detain a number of persons "in the interests of public safety."

Since his takeover, 32 persons have been transported to an internment camp on the Mazaruni River. More arrests are expected.

The Highlands was a special project re-assessment area last year.

The result: a big boost in assessed values and a corresponding jump in taxes.

Provincial assessors work over a different area of unorganized territory each year, and last year it happened to be the Highlands.

A spokesman for the finance department said more reassessment is being done in Southern Vancouver Island this year—but he declined to disclose the area.

"We don't usually give out that information because it can cause all kinds of trouble," he said.

JANUARY COURT

He said each area is reassessed every three to four years.

If Highlands property owners are unhappy they should have appealed their assessments at a court of revision in January, the official said.

But the same situation prevails across B.C., he added.

Assessments have increased quite sharply during the past three or four years because of rising property values.

The Highlands assessments were based upon the 1962 market value of land in the area, he said.

SALES ANALYSIS

The department runs a sales analysis of the province each year and then decides which area to reassess.

Assessments are fixed at half the sale value by the Equalization of Assessments Act.

Re-assessment is done first in areas where there is the biggest gap.

Meanwhile, financial aid from across Canada continues to pour in to the strikebound valley, and is paid out to all people affected by the strike at the rate of $70,000 a week.

Typical contributions are such as the Harmac pulp and sulphite workers' union donation this morning of $2,000.

Alberni Valley Labor Emergency Committee chairman Jack Whittall said all affected are being paid "enough to keep the wolf from the door."

He said it would not be necessary for anyone to use tidal wave relief payments to live.

WOMAN GETS YEAR IN MERCY DEATH

TEL AVIV (Reuters)—Mrs. Giselle Kafri, 34, was sentenced by an Israeli court Sunday to one year's imprisonment for the "mercy killing" of her son—born blind, deaf and dumb as well as mentally retarded.

But the district court ordered that Mrs. Kafri be released on bail until November to allow an application to President Zalman Shazar for a remission of sentence, to be submitted in a few days.

CLAIMS THREE VICTIMS

Paris Gripped by Fear Of 'Boastful Strangler'

PARIS (AP)—A volatile fugitive with a compulsion to kill and tell has Parisian parents on tenterhooks.

The man who signs himself 'The Strangler' claims he killed 11-year-old Luc Taron before dawn May 27 and that he has also murdered two men. He has written 27 times to police, newspapers and radio stations.

"I already know which child

I want to talk about for the announcement of my next kidnapping," he wrote.

At first the letters were considered the work of a crank. But Yves Taron, Luc's father, said after reading one of the latest missives: "It's he (the killer). There is no doubt. He gives too many precise details."

Police also are convinced the letter writer knows too much to be crossed off as a mentally deranged person who has no connection with the killing of the Taron boy.

The man said he lives in the 15th arrondissement district of Paris, has a Citroen automobile and is the son of a high civil servant. The handwriting slants backward, as if written with the left hand.

But he warned: "In what I say, it must be understood that is both true and false."

The writer says he encountered Luc about 11:30 p.m. on May 26 at a subway station. They went for a walk, took the subway, then went by car to the 'Varrières Forest, south of Paris.

School teachers have warned pupils not to talk to strangers.

When asked through newspapers the names of the two men he claims to have killed, the man replied that one was a banker and the other a policeman who tried to stop him at a roadblock.

A private funeral service was held this morning for Harold P. McIntyre, who died here Saturday in his 90th year.

Mr. McIntyre, who was born in Woodstock, N.B., was a veteran of both the Boer War and the First World War.

Prior to moving to Victoria in 1952 he lived in Kamloops where he worked with the department of highways.

He was a life member of the Kamloops branch of the Royal Canadian Legion and a member of the Legion's Britannia Branch in Victoria.

During the First World War he was awarded both the Cross of St. George and the Military Medal.

He is survived by the widow, Olive; a son H. N. McIntyre, and daughter, Mrs. Isabel Wood, both of Victoria, and six granddaughters.

CZECHS GET LIBERALIZED PARLIAMENT

PRAGUE (AP)—Communist Czechoslovakia got a new parliament Sunday in a mammoth election that cleaned out remnants of its Stalinist past.

More than 9,000,000 voters balloted in favor of single-list candidates of the Communist-controlled National Front.

It was the first election since President Anton Novotny agreed to join reformist elements in a new "liberalized" course for this westernmost member of the Soviet bloc.

The National Assembly received the most drastic face-lift since the Communists took over in 1948. Almost half the men in the new assembly are young newcomers who have been clamoring strongly for domestic reforms.

NO LEGAL RIGHT

New Flag Saddens Chatterton

Prime Minister Pearson has absolutely no legal right to test-fly his new maple leaf flag in Ottawa, says Esquimalt-Saanich MP George Chatterton.

Mr. Chatterton said he looked from his office with sadness, regret and anger at the new flag on Parliament Hill this week.

The sadness comes when I cast my eyes higher to the Red Ensign still flying atop the Peace Tower—perhaps its last summer in this honored position.

"My regret is that what seems likely to become Canada's flag does not show any character—from where I am sitting it looks like a trademark—and carries no indication of our great history."

"My anger comes from another step by Pearson in ramming this pennant down our throats."

Mr. Chatterton said the Red Ensign is the official flag for Parliament Hill and there is no legal authority for the new one to fly there.

He said he presented a written request from a large number of MPs that the new flag not be flown unless approved by Parliament, but it was ignored.

ATHENS (Reuters)—Evim Ilkin, 20, daughter of the Turkish ambassador to Greece, was charged with "homicide by negligence" Monday following a car accident in which a Greek woman was killed.

Mr. Chatterton said the Red Ensign is the official flag for Parliament Hill and there is no legal authority for the new one to fly there.

He said he presented a written request from a large number of MPs that the new flag not be flown unless approved by Parliament, but it was ignored.

Katanga Uneasy as UN Leaves

ELISABETHVILLE (Reuters)

The future of the Congo's Katanga province, the world's third largest source of copper, hangs in the balance as the last of United Nations troops prepare to withdraw.

When the original withdrawal from Katanga was postponed last December, the UN military force consisted of nearly 7,000 men.

By June 30, only a small civilian staff will be left to administer about 1,500 technical assistance men on loan to the Congolese government from UN agencies such as the World Health Organization and the International Labor Organization.

The entire Congo operation has cost the United Nations more than 200 lives and about $400,000 since July, 1960.

More than 1,900 Canadian soldiers and airmen have served in the UN Congo force, and the final 179 are among the servicemen being withdrawn.

Those of the Belgian population who stayed and the large numbers who eventually returned after the UN gained the upper hand in the province, now fear another outbreak of fighting.

Reports from Angola say the gendarmes have been promised by their leaders that they can return to fight in Katanga once the UN troops leave.

Seven battalions of Congolese Army soldiers based here are not considered effectively mobile because of a shortage of vehicles and gasoline.

Congolese troops in Katanga have the additional task of keeping people at work.

THE DECISION OF GOVERNOR Scranton of Pennsylvania to bid for the Republican presidential nomination adds a new and hopeful element to the political situation in the United States. He will provide opposition to the so-far runaway nomination campaign of Senator Goldwater and keep the forthcoming Republican convention from becoming what he has termed "a coronation."

While the more moderate Republicans no doubt will greet this development with pleasure, there is reason to believe it is too little and too late to stop Goldwater. Governor Scranton has little national reputation and, although long inviting a draft movement, has only now roused a small last-ditch support from one facet of the Party.

The cold fact of Senator Goldwater's probable nomination still stands. And while many prominent Republicans may view his candidacy against President Johnson as a sure loss for the Party, they are not likely to see a much better fate for Governor Scranton.

The real danger of the Goldwater candidacy lies not in his possible election—even though he commands a large body of votes on the Party's extreme right—but in the effect at home and abroad which his presence in the race will provoke. Democrats fear that with Compensation for the Victim?

ONE OF THE CRITICISMS OF modern efforts to rehabilitate prisoners and restore them to an acceptable place in decent society—a process costly in time, effort and money—is phrased in a simple question: "What about the victim?"

It is all very good, runs the argument, to try to reform the offender and to give him another chance. But who looks after the person injured by the offender's action?

The question has reached the point of earnest discussion in the United States, where opinion is sharply divided on the issue of compensation to a victim. At the same time those both in favor of a system by which society—presumably meaning the taxpayer—would try to make financial amends to the injured party, and those against the suggestion, see room for serious study.

There are a number of questions

Hard Up for Money?

THE PROVINCIAL CABINET has rightly turned down a proposal to charge $1 a night in the public camping parks of British Columbia. There has long been an urge among some members of the Social Credit government to make the parks revenue-producing—despite the facts that in "fire weather" the public is denied access to almost any other part of the wilderness, that these parklands are virtually the only part of their countryside the people have simple access to and can use, that for most campers the less spent in over-civilizing the camps the better, and that this is one of the forms of healthful and inexpensive family recreation that should be most encouraged.

That urge is far from dead.

On the Move

ONE OF THE MOST STRIKING aspects of North American life to people from Europe is the restlessness, the urge to be constantly on the move, in contrast to the general European tendency to live out one's life at or near the place where one was born.

This is most notable in the United States, perhaps less so in Canada. A recent study by the University of Michigan, for instance, indicates that in 1964 one out of every five American families will move to another state; and one out of every five family heads now lives over 1,000 miles from where he was born.

This is by no means a new phenomenon. The famous French social researcher and writer Alexis de Tocqueville noted in his book "Democracy in America" in 1831: "In the United States, a man builds a house in which to spend his old age, and he sells it before the roof is on; he plants a garden and rents it just as the trees are coming into bearing; he brings a field into tillage and leaves other men to gather the crops; he embraces a profession and gives it up; he settles into a place, which he soon afterwards leaves to carry his changeable longings elsewhere."

The mobility of the American people is seen by some modern-day

observers as one of the country's sources of great economic strength by imparting great flexibility in adapting to change. Is it, perhaps, of some significance that the post-war economic revival of Europe in very recent years has brought about greater mobility of Europeans, a greater readiness to move to new areas, to new countries, in order to make a better living? In this country, for that matter, the one feature of the proposed Canada Pension Plan which almost everyone agrees is good is that it seeks to introduce nation-wide "portability" of pensions so that people will no longer be tied to their jobs through fears for their future economic security.

Other observers, less concerned with the economic aspect of the mobility of populations, point out the price that is paid in terms of the lessening importance of the family unit and the growing restlessness of young people who have no feeling of roots in a secure past and few channels into which they can pour their energies.

However, while some deplore and others applaud the nomadic spirit and its attendant effects on the social system, it seems obvious that there will be no holding back. What used to be the relatively unique American urge "to carry his changeable longings elsewhere" is spreading all over the world.

FROM LONDON

By RICHARD PURSER

Anxious To Say Goodbye

THE British government has served what all parties and most Britons consider much-needed notice on Cyprus and United Nations authorities that Britain will not automatically keep its troops in Cyprus after the present United Nations peacekeeping force mandate has ended.

The three-month term expires on June 26. The Security Council is expected to meet in New York on June 14 to renew the mandate for a similar period. It is universally expected by all, including the Cyprus government, to do so with little, if any, opposition.

Canada, which spurred creation of the UN force and provides the backbone of its non-British contingent, early made clear its willingness to keep its troops on, barring unforeseen circumstances.

Cut Down

British troops went to Cyprus after the December crisis there following proposals by President Makarios for sweeping changes in the constitution. Since arrival of the UN troops, Britain has been able to cut its contribution down to about 2,000 men. It would like to cut the number by half again, or even down to zero.

The problem is the inability of British troops and the Greek Cypriot community to get along with each other. There are long memories on both sides. Greek Cypriots recalling the struggle for independence—or for union with Greece, as it then was—find it difficult to accept British troops as neutral members of a United Nations force, blue berets or no. British soldiers, many of whom fought in Cyprus in the late 1950s, have an emotional dislike of Greeks and a natural sympathy for the Turkish Cypriots.

The Greek Cypriot press has been inflammatory, and there has been increasing harassment not only of British troops but of British civilians. Britain has been especially annoyed by the searches of Britons conducted by Greek Cypriot police, and the virtual conviction by a Cypriot cabinet minister at a press conference of a serviceman arrested for allegedly smuggling arms to the Turkish Cypriots.

Must Be Wanted

Mr. Sandy, the Commonwealth Relations secretary, spoke for British sentiment in general when he told the House of Commons on June 2 that "before entering into a commitment for a further period, we shall wish to be satisfied that our continued participation is necessary and is generally desired by the other countries concerned."

If between now and June 26 the efforts of diplomats could boost the UN force from other sources by a number equal to the British contribution, Britain would be bailed out of a difficult situation and the entire UN force would be better able to do its job.

Strangely enough, Greek Cypriot officialdom does not believe Britain really wants to pull out its troops. Spokesmen here continue to suggest that Britain has "interests" in the area and that the government is only playing up to public opinion. They suggest that what Britain really fears is leaving a "vacuum" which might be filled by foreign troops—say Yugoslavian or Egyptian—whom the British would prefer not to have in Cyprus.

Famous Last Words

LOPE DE VEGA (1562-1635):

On his deathbed, Spain's greatest dramatist asked his physician if there was any chance he might not die. He explained he had a revelation of such a nature that after he had said it, life would be impossible. Assured he was dying, Lope then exclaimed loudly: "Well—Dante makes me sick!"

JOHN GRAY (1685-1732):

The English poet and author of "The Beggar's Opera" (from which the modern "Three-Penny Opera" was subsequently made) wrote this poem for his tomb in Westminster Abbey as he lay on his deathbed: "Life is a jest and all things show it, I thought so once, but now I know it."

Quebec Tailoring Only

IN ITS peregrinations through English-speaking Canada, the Dunton-Laurendeau Commission has not infrequently been challenged by persons who believe that Quebec will not be satisfied until it has secured a dominating position in the Canadian Confederation. One would suppose that the Quebec government would be greatly concerned to dissipate this unfortunate impression.

If this concern exists, it obviously does not extend to Mr. Kierans, the Quebec revenue minister, whose latest utterances should go far to establish him in the public mind as Mr. Levesque's man Friday in the Lesage government.

Addressing a conference on industrial relations, Mr. Kierans voiced doubt that the federal government has the "guts" to implement the policies necessary to save Confederation. He was reasonably clear as to the policies which he had in mind.

Objecting to "hand-outs" (that is to say, equalization payments) from Ottawa, Mr. Kierans argues that they are necessary because federal fiscal, commercial and especially monetary policies are not properly tailored to Quebec's needs. He seems alarmed, perhaps unduly so, by the thought that Ottawa may seek to bring its budget into balance and he makes it very clear that Quebec has no such intention.

Inflation for Jobs

But he is particularly incensed about "tight money", which he blames for the appearance of the Creditists in his province. He insists that there should be enough monetary inflation to solve the unemployment problem in Quebec.

As recently as last month Mr. Rasmussen, the Governor of the Bank of Canada, pointed out in a Quebec speech that monetary policy had contributed to the upward movement of the Canadian economy since 1961. He felt that the price movement had been reasonably restrained because of the existence in the economy of large amounts of slack at the beginning of the expansion. He addressed this serious warning:

"It is obvious that, as slack is reduced, the public authorities must be increasingly alert to the possibility that additional demand pressures instead of encouraging further increases in domestic output and employment may be dissipated in rising prices and excessive imports. Policies which have the effect of worsening a country's competitive position clearly do not speed up the growth of its production and employment but indeed have the opposite effect."

Mr. Rasmussen was careful to note that monetary policy cannot do the whole job, and, moreover, that it cannot be localized so as to serve particular regions.

The central bank cannot cause credit conditions to be different in one area of the country than another. If by some other means, lower interest rates for comparable investments were sought throughout one particular area, those persons within the lower-interest rate area with money to invest would tend to seek investment outside the area and, on the other hand, capital from outside the area would not flow in."

Control of Tap

As a former president of the Montreal Stock Exchange, Mr. Kierans is, of course, well aware of this. It is ridiculous, he told his audience, to suggest that he wants two monetary policies. What he wants then is one monetary policy and the tap of inflation must not be turned off until the needs of all parts of Quebec are met.

Even in periods of expansion like the present, there are pockets of serious unemployment and it is quite true that unemployment has been higher in Quebec than in most other areas. But what would Mr. Kierans' prescription mean for the rest of Canada?

On the assumption, denied by Mr. Rasmussen, that inflationary policies if pursued with sufficient determination could mop up unemployment in Quebec trouble spots, a high price would obviously have to be paid by the country as a whole.

Monetary policy cannot be divided. If there was little slack in the rest of the economy the additional demand pressures generated would, as Mr. Rasmussen warns, force up prices. This would not merely burden consumers; it would cripple our export industries. At the same time, it would encourage a flood of imports and further aggravate our payments problem.

Mr. Kierans does not and could not deny that monetary and commercial policy is the responsibility of the federal government. But he intends to see to it that Quebec gets more and more involved in a dialogue with Ottawa on these subjects.

Other Qualified Economists

Why should such matters involve a dialogue between governments when the federal government represents all Canada and includes among its members such well known economists as Mr. Sauve and Mr. Lamontagne who are surely as well qualified as Mr. Kierans to present the Quebec view?

What would he say if Ottawa made like demands about matters exclusively within the provincial jurisdiction? No one will deny that Mr. Kierans has a perfect right to his views. But he is a minister and when he goes about telling people what Quebec will or will not put up with, it must be assumed that he speaks for his government.

He is saying in effect that federal policies must be adjusted to meet Quebec's special needs, whatever the effect on the rest of the country. Such a claim is bound to strike people in other provinces as highly presumptuous and may strengthen the impression that Mr. Kierans was more helpful to his province when he was running the stock exchange.

Legion and Parade Flags

At the last meeting of the South Vancouver Island Zone Council of the Royal Canadian Legion, the delegates assembled reported that they had received many comments from public sources because of the fact that the Royal Canadian Legion Colour Party, which took part in the Victoria Day parade, did not carry the Red Ensign. I was instructed by the District Council to write letters to the press with a view to clarifying the Legion's position in this regard.

The only colours that may be carried at parades of this description are the Union flag, which is always in the lead or posted to the right of the Legion banner. This procedure was strictly carried out at this particular parade, and to the best of my knowledge, all previous such parades in this city.

This letter is sent for the information of those who have raised this question and certainly not to provoke any further controversy on the current "flag issue." The Legion's position in this latter regard, has already received full publicity through press and other media.

Zone Commander.

Why Be 'Bi'

The bilingual, bicultural commission has held its public meetings here and elsewhere at heavy taxpayers' expense. Here, many local French-Canadians attended, supported by a few others apparently in the appeasement category.

The "Quebecois" seem openly determined to impose the will of their minority province on the nine other English-speaking provinces of Canada. The obvious unprejudiced answer to our Quebec compatriots should be: One national official language only, English, as successfully adopted and officially recognized in the United States, a nation also of many racial origins.

Incidentally, the BNA Act reads, in part, "French language 'may be used' in Parliament and in the courts"; not "shall be." Why should nine English-speaking provinces be expected to yield to Quebec's expensive demands for unwarranted, confusing, and politically-questionable changes to transform Canada into a completely bilingual nation?

R. B. SHAW.

Delay on the Church

The City of Victoria is known for its British tradition and this has certainly set it out as a city of tolerance and equal treatment for all people. All peoples should receive fair treatment whether popular or unpopular. The same principle should be true of meeting places.

This city has a good bylaw which states: "Churches shall be permitted on approval of application and plans by the City Council."

How surprising then to find some of the city fathers wavering in independence!

In parliamentary debates over the years Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Pearson have accused each other of endangering Canada's sovereignty. Why should one of them now oppose Canada wearing the garb of sovereignty, the status he so nobly defended? Is he afraid of the mob?

INSIDE POLITICS

With Douglas Fisher, M.P.

ONE can take delight in the discomfiture of rivals for just so long, then it becomes embarrassing. There never seems to be enough consistent excellence in the Pearson ministry's House performance to gild the recurrent fluffs and stupidities of so many of the ministers. In fact, it is my opinion that the Pearson men compare badly with the Diefenbaker cabinet, in House terms and particularly on performance during the question period. Lately, the gaucho of René Tremblay has been amusing: when one notices the writhing or frozen mien of his colleagues it is entertaining: when he is joined at the game of answers or poor answers by others such as Miss LaMarsh or the PM it becomes too much. One begins to feel that this government and this Parliament should go away and never come back with its present makeup.

Beastly Opinions

These rather beastly opinions of mine come after a week in which Mr. Tremblay has acted like a cigar store Indian in the face of questions about immigration cases and the Pearson film has raised a number of tricky questions about the relationship of the Liberal inner cabal and the CBC without bringing any solid answers. Then the flag question has meandered from the ridiculous to the inane in almost every question period with Mr. Pearson bold as a lion at moments and as uninformed as a back-bencher at others. For example, he was both unconvincing and confused on the petty matter of flying his flag design on Parliament Hill, basing his decision to take this informal step on the strength of a couple of suggestions from the Opposition. He has left half a dozen possibilities open on how the flag resolution is to be handled once the debate begins. This has been quite unnecessary on several counts: the simplest reason is that once a motion is put on the order paper, no one is entitled to anticipate it in any substantial way. One time the PM holds to this protection: the next he burbles out with answers that need not have been given.

A Romp for Pick

One day during the week Mr. Pearson was absent: so was his normal deputy, Paul Martin. Jack Pickersgill became the lead spokesman and he took the chance with gusto. He romped through the question period with the high-handed belligerence we all remember so well. It worked: no question to the acting PM was taken as serious or important but as partisan or stupid. This is no formula for a happy House but it left the place at the end with an aired-out atmosphere. All the participants are ready to accept House political exchanges as a rough-tough game. It's when prevarication comes one moment, then courtesy, and then iniquity, that one despairs and wonders what could be a proper fate for such an uneventful bag of men and such hesitant leadership.

An election soon seems the readiest answer. The loyalty to Mr. Pearson in his party is too strong for a quick ditching of him and his own ego vis-à-vis. Mr. Diefenbaker is too engaged to allow what seems the best solution: that is, his own neat and quick resignation. None of the Liberals I encounter is prepared to consider openly these latter possibilities or either a forced or a solicited resignation.

This is very understandable. Yet the very bitterness of the reaction I encountered a month or so ago when I suggested Mr. Pearson should go in favor of Mr. Martin or Mr. Sharp was much more than the suggestion merited, considering who it came from. That is why I believe the Liberals who whipped or who were prepared to whip me were, to a degree, exorcising their own consciences. Most of the brighter ones know in their inner thoughts that their party has an indecisive leader but it is treasonable for anyone else to think so.

End of Honeymoon

One consequence of the criticism of Mr. Pearson as another Diefenbaker-type, an ineffectual leader of the nation, is that it is leading slowly to the end of the honeymoon for the administration. Various, the interpretive bystanders have been able to blame Walter Gordon and Harry Hays and Azelius Denis and Lionel Chevrier and Judy LaMarsh and Roger Teillet and Jack Pickersgill and Guy Favreau and René Tremblay. It has been possible for them to generate some enthusiasm for Mitchell Sharp and Paul Martin and Paul Hellyer. But in the main their theme has been that Mike is a great guy without any side or bluff who knows where he is going and will get there quietly and efficiently, despite the letdowns of his subordinates.

This theme is beginning to run very thin. About the only thing that keeps it going is reflection on the horrible alternative in terms of the Opposition. Now, even the dread of a returned John Diefenbaker is becoming less and less terrible. If the economic times were not so good and so rosy in prospect a hurricane of criticism would be sweeping at the Pearson government.

One wonders this: if they can be this poor when days, how bad will they become when the cycle dips? The question seems very apt as I write this, on a day when I found members of four opposition parties gathered behind the curtain and acknowledging that they felt sorry for the government. As a Tory friend of mine put it: "You can't be too happy when you see your country led by such a collection of bumbler."

A Little Persian Adventure

It is always a worthwhile experience to a gardener to grow a slightly unusual plant for the first time.

The spirit of adventure leads us to experiment a little here and there. If the culture of the plant is anything other than a commonplace routine, so much the better.

When success attends our efforts, resulting in a healthy plant of pleasant and unusual appearance we are satisfied.

If flowers appear which are also attractive, we are apt to become excited.

For the past five or even six years, we have been harboring a number of pomegranate plants. Grown from the seed contained in a ripe fruit purchased for eating, the plants have been grown on into half-gallon cans, surviving at least the last three winters outdoors.

We had felt that the shrubby plants with small shiny green leaves and reddish stems would make attractive tub plants for sunny enclosed patios, if they could be induced to flower.

The plants, properly known as Punica granatum, have been grown for fruit in English hot-houses since the 16th century, but as they are listed only as slightly tender, we had hoped to get flowers on outdoor grown plants.

No luck, however, for us yet. But in Saturday's flower show at Victoria West someone entered as a potted house plant a pomegranate in bloom.

It fitted the descriptions which we had in mind, and was even nicer to look at than we had anticipated.

The bright orange blooms were about an inch deep and as wide much, a sort of upright goblet shape at the ends of the reddish stems.

Fragrance, rather expected in a fruit native to Persia, seemed to be absent. The small shrubby plant in a four-inch pot had many flowers, and buds on every twiggy stem.

Probably raised in a warm room and a sunny window, it is an inspiration to us to try to get our pomegranate shrubs to bloom.

Listed as a small tree 15 to 25 feet high in its native country, we might expect it to flower all summer in a warm season. It is "finds" like this which make flower shows worth visiting.

Russians Want Trousers So Moscow, Peking Split

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

Associated Press Staff Writer

Nikita Khrushchev seems about ready to admit that the Soviet-Chinese split is unbridgeable in the foreseeable future and that a splintered Communist world is inevitable.

Khrushchev concedes there is an estrangement not only between the Chinese and Soviet Communist parties but also between the Peking and Moscow governments.

Khrushchev leaves it up to the Chinese whether there will be a move toward reconciliation. Displaying little hope that there will be, he virtually apologizes to the rest of the Communist world for the current state of affairs.

Khrushchev's remarks, interpolated in Friday's speech about the East German-Soviet friendship treaty, indicated a profound weariness with the whole Chinese affair. They seemed the words of a man caught in an impossible squeeze between pressures in the Soviet Union for economic advancement and the pressures of world Communism for more aggressive expansion.

NOT HIS FAULT

If there is no reconciliation, Khrushchev seems to say, it will not be his fault but Peking's.

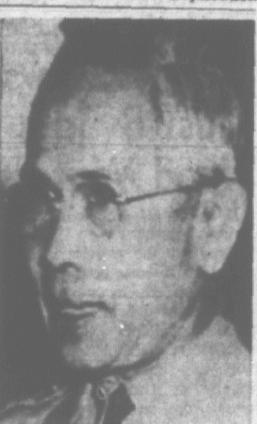

"One should not," says Khrushchev, "allow the spread of ideological differences to interfere with intergovernmental relations, since this ultimately weakens the position of world socialism and plays into the hands of imperialism."

"We believe that even today the road is not closed for the normalization of Soviet-Chinese relations, including governmental relations. All that is required is good will and awareness of one's supreme duty to one's people, to the entire revolutionary movement. Our party will constantly guide itself by this principle."

It seems likely Moscow considers China effectively outside the Soviet bloc of nations. The Soviet newspaper Izvestia recently quoted Marshal Chen Yi, China's foreign minister, as describing China as a "non-aligned country." Izvestia added that "politically speaking, this means Chen Yi no longer considers China part of the world socialist (Communist) camp."

BEEN HARMFUL

The break has done enormous harm to the world Communist movement and Khrushchev seems to want to escape blame. He offers what sounds like an excuse, with the implication has claimed Field Marshal Pibul Songgram-who twice served as prime minister of Thailand. Pibul, 67, died of a heart attack in Tokyo. He first became PM in 1938. He co-operated with the Japanese during the Second World War and was ousted in 1944. He resigned the post four years later but was deposed by a coup d'état in 1957 and took up residence in Japan the next year.

that it wasn't really his fault. World Communists were expecting too much of him, he indicates, and adds:

"Many of us Communists at first thought that in relations between Socialist countries there should not be a single hitch. But life proved more complicated and contradictory than ideological conjectures."

Temporary difficulties are inevitable and some mistakes are possible when such profound transformations are being carried out."

The Chinese accuse Khrushchev of going capitalist, of catering to a Russian middle class which thinks of comfort and individual happiness before world revolution.

Khrushchev insists he is just as ardently for world revolution as the Chinese. But he reflects the Soviet people's own aspirations when he says people around the world would hardly follow a Communist government "whose people have no trousers."

STUDENTS HIT BOOKS OR BEACHES

Cram for Exam or Fun in Sun?

For some high school students today is the beginning of summer vacation.

FALSE TEETH That Loosen Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not worry, help is here. Just a little FASSTEETH. Just sprinkle a little FASSTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on the plates. False teeth move firmly, then feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor breath". Get FASSTEETH at drug counters everywhere. Advt.

For others it is the beginning of one or more exhausting weeks of cramming and exam writing.

Whether a student hits the beaches or the books depends upon his academic ability and ambitions.

High school students who have maintained good marks and work habits during the year are "recommended"—they do not have to write departmental examinations because it is assumed they would pass anyway.

As a result some students may have to write only one exam, some may have to write seven.

NO SUPPS

And this year there is no second chance, no supplemental examinations.

Failure in any subject means no admission to university in September. It means taking night school, private tutoring or correspondence next year or returning to school to take the failed course plus any others the student wishes to study.

But students not earning recommendations aren't the only ones who'll be sweating over books for the next week or two.

Nearly all scholarships are given on the basis of departmental examinations.

Grade 12 students writing for scholarships generally write the English 40 literature and language exams plus three others.

HELP ON FEES

If they attain an average of 80 per cent or more, one-half of their fees at B.C. universities are paid by the provincial government. And at over 80 per cent the chances for other scholarships, some worth as much as $500 per year for four years, increase considerably.

Students with very high second-class marks, usually from 75 to 80 per cent averages, will likely receive one-third their fees and have fighting chances at smaller scholarships.

In private schools recommendation is not practised, and all students will be writing departmental examinations.

Junior secondary and elementary students must stay in classes until the end of June, although many junior secondary schools complete examinations well before final classes are released.

Water Safety Films Available

Two water safety films, sponsored by the Canadian Red Cross Society, have been made available for free group showings.

Announcement was made this week by the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada, producers of the films.

This week is National Water Safety Week.

The films, "Be Water Wise" and "Boating and Good Sense," can be borrowed from the National Film Board or provincial Red Cross headquarters, it was stated.

A formal invitation has been sent to the school by the director general of the Folkloric Festival of Oaxaca, Pueblo and Mexico City.

Appeals have begun in the Kamloops area to raise $10,000 to pay for the girls' transportation. Once there, the Mexican government will pick up the tab for their expenses.

The dancing troupe is made up of girls from all over British Columbia who attend the school 10 months of the year.

TALKS NEAR END

Geneva Reaches Terms on Trade

By JOHN TALBOT

GENEVA (Reuters) — The world trade conference, saved from almost certain failure when agreement was reached Sunday night on permanent world trade machinery under the United Nations, meets today in its final plenary session.

The agreement was expected to be formally ratified at the plenary session, which will bring the three-month conference of 119 countries to a close.

The 75 developing countries at the conference accepted a compromise draft — known as the "Heath formula" — on continuing permanent world trade machinery to carry on the conference's work.

It healed what had appeared to be an irreparable split between the developing and industrialized countries over the voting arrangements and safeguards for Western interests in the proposed machinery.

The majority group of developing nations refused to accept a weighted voting system designed to safeguard Western nations from being automatically outvoted on all issues.

WORKED OUT FORMULA

The 11th-hour formula was worked out by British Trade Minister Edward Heath.

The developing countries agreed on recommendations for principles governing international commodity trade and access for products of developing countries to the markets of developed ones.

Cry of Timber-r-r-r To Be Heard in U.K.

Last year representatives from the U.K. visited Canada under the auspices of the Canadian government as part of a campaign to promote the use of timber in houses. This was followed up by a visit to the U.K. by industrial representatives from B.C.

A four-man "Timber Housing Group" from B.C. will start work in the United Kingdom by Aug. 1.

The group will take advantage of long-range government plans to replace a large percentage of Britain's century-old homes.

The timber team's job will be to convince builders to use lumber — B.C. lumber.

The team is sponsored by the B.C. Lumber Manufacturers' Association and the Plywood Manufacturers' Association of B.C.

The timber group will provide a complete architectural, engineering and building advisory service to building associations, government and local authorities, architects and builders.

MAJOR CENTRES

The suitability of B.C. timber and plywood in specific housing projects will be promoted in all major centres in

Wage Bid Lost Again

OTTAWA (CP) — Stanley Knowles tried again Friday to get his legislation for a $1.25-an-hour minimum wage through the Commons. He has been trying for years. But the NDP member didn't get any further than before. The House "talked out" his bill.

Green Hottest But Westling Grabs Big One

NORTH VANCOUVER—Smokey Green of Victoria held the hottest rifle here Saturday but the championship of the annual B.C. Rifle Association prize meeting went to New Westminster's Gunnar Westling.

Shooting for the Canadian Scottish Regiment, Green captured the Lieutenant-Governor's medal, glamor prize of the week-long shoot. Master-Willie Mays going back to the wall to rob our boys of hits!" Green scored 191 of a possible 200 in the final stage of the Lieutenant-Governor's event.

Westling was right behind the Scottish ace, firing 190 in the final stage, rated the toughest event of the competition with shooting from 300, 600 and 900 yards.

George Grivel of Victoria's Pacific Command-Rifle Association was third at 189.

Westling, winner of the Queen's Prize at Blyth, Eng., in 1960, finished the week's shooting with a total tally of 878 in major events to collect the grand aggregate crown of the provincial championship of rifle shooting.

JOHNSON SECOND

Calgary's Steve Johnson was second in the aggregate, four points behind Westling and two ahead of another Calgary sniper, Doug Worm.

Victoria veteran Fran Morse was in fourth place with 861.

Island shooters completed a successful week by placing nine men among the top 25 in the aggregate race. The 25 leaders qualify for places on the B.C. team to the Dominion shoot at Ottawa in August.

Frank Drysdale of the Canadian Scottish won the over-60 aggregate title and Hazel Worman of Calgary captured the women's aggregate.

AMAZING CNIB MAN RETIRING . . . WELL, ALMOST

Under His Hand, 35 Years of Big Strides

By JIM BIGSBY

At the end of July a 66-year-old executive will abandon his Vancouver office to a successor and head for New York and the United Nations building to present a paper at the General Assembly of the World Council of the Blind.

It will not be his first appearance before the World Council. A paper setting ideals for the economic security of the blind was presented by him in Paris at the 1954 UNESCO-sponsored conference, and the philosophy contained therein was accepted by the World Council as an ultimate 20th century goal.

NOT THE FIRST

Now will the applause be the first recognition of an amazing man.

In 1936 he was commissioned captain for services rendered the militia of Canada; in 1943 he was made a member of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire for services rendered during the Second World War; in 1957 UBC conferred upon him an honorary doctor of laws degree.

The man is Capt. M. C. Robinson, national director of Western Canada for the Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

YOUNGEST IN ARMY

At 18 years old the youngest sergeant-major in the Canadian Army, he was blinded by gunshot at Vimy Ridge in 1917.

He went to St. Dunstan's and graduated a physiotherapist, practising in Victoria for nine years until in 1929 he joined the CNIB as superintendent of British Columbia and Alberta, becoming western director in 1941.

Now preparing to hand over his desk at the end of July (he retired officially in May but stayed on to complete certain programs), Capt. Robinson finished his last official visit to Victoria on Saturday.

Although he is more inclined to think of the future, he looked back on the 35 years of progress made in B.C. under his direction.

LITTLE WAS DONE

In 1929 very little was being done for the blind. Eighteen men were employed at extremely low wages at a small broom factory in an old fire-trap of a building; one teacher was struggling to teach handcrafts and braille—and that was the sum total of activity.

There were 300 so-called known blind in B.C. then. Today there are 2,600.

Now 65 are employed in small business enterprises established by the CNIB in hospitals, public buildings, and so forth. These range from small stands up to cafeterias where the blind act as dishwashers, managers and other jobs.

There used to be no blind in outside industry, but now nearly 300 work in 'sighted' industry.

We have five fully qualified teachers of the adult blind—they themselves are blind—five field secretaries travelling the province looking after the welfare of the blind, and three fully qualified social workers.

TRAINING PROGRAM

We have a rehabilitation training program now, one of the most adequate on the continent; we have organized recreation, also best on the continent.

Blind people bowl, swim, dance, fish, play cards, bridge and chess, and join in literary and music appreciation groups.

At Bowen Island, a year-round vacation and adjustment centre, even the poorest of the blind can enjoy very comfortable and high-grade vacations.

The newly-blind, nervous and frightened, can start adjustment training there in company with their next-of-kin until they get over their fear of darkness.

For parents of preschool age blind children there are very extensive counselling services.

TO QUALICUM

In retirement Captain Robinson will spend more time with his wife at their Qualicum Beach cottage, fishing and doing his carpentry.

But retirement will be more active than most men's lives.

He plans to help the handicapped as well as the blind.

A pet project will be the recruiting and organization of a national committee to explore and develop suitable professional and semi-professional careers for young blind persons (Eleven

MAYBE ON MONDAY IF TOM BEHAVES

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Floyd Hayes was so afraid someone would try to kill him he used a remote control device to start his car.

The former Teamsters Union official was shot to death in a parking lot as he went to get the device, used to thwart possible booby traps in his automobile.

At the end of the month, Hayes was to have started a five-year prison sentence in connection with misuse of nearly $200,000 of Teamsters funds from Local 41 in Kansas City. Hayes was a former treasurer of the local.

Herbert J. Miller Jr., assistant attorney-general, told the Kansas City Star from Washington that Hayes would have been a witness in federal proceedings but did not reveal their nature.

Hayes, 67, was walking toward his car after leaving a bowling alley with his wife when another car drove up. A man in the passenger seat shot him once with a shotgun, they got out and fired another blast into his prone body at close range.

Hayes' wife Myra, 51, was shot once with a pistol but was not in serious condition.

Church Sees Sharp Drop In Growth

TORONTO (CP)—Although finances have never been healthier, the United Church of Canada is alarmed at the decline in spiritual returns, says its official magazine.

The Observer reports in its June issue that professions of faith are down from 40,271 in the period 1956 to 1961, to 24,244 last year. New adult full communicants are down from 21,627 in 1958 to 13,941 last year.

The magazine says despite the increase in the birthrate in Canada, major reductions have been noted in baptisms, Sunday school enrolments, men's club memberships, and candidates for the ministry.

There is also a 15,000-membership loss in the church itself, the report says.

But, says The Observer, at the same time all aspects of church finances show marked improvement.

Ministers' salaries are up nearly $200. The value of church property has increased by $20,000,000, and record sums have been raised for missions and benevolences.

blind students from B.C. now attend university.)

He will also be busy as a member of the national CNIB council and the advisory board of the Jericho Hill School for the deaf and blind.

Capt. Robinson wanted one thing emphasized: "The tremendous co-operation the CNIB has received from the public generally, the municipalities, the provincial government and the news media."

It would appear he wishes everyone could feel satisfaction for helping others.

Capt. Robinson will be succeeded by Ross C. Purse, who has been superintendent in Saskatchewan.

INTEGRATION

Birmingham
Takes Giant
Step in Year

Just a year ago, Negroes were carrying their protests into the streets of Birmingham. The city was on the brink of a racial explosion. Relman Morin covered the demonstrations in June, 1963, and the disorders that broke out in September when the Birmingham schools were integrated. In this story, he takes a look at Birmingham 12 months after the troubles began.

By RELMAN MORIN

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Three Negro girls take seats at the lunch counter in a Birmingham department store.

The white waitress promptly serves them. Nobody pays any attention.

At the baseball park, Negroes and whites sit together in the stands, cheering Birmingham Barons. Four of the Barons are Negroes. The team is having a great season, financially, and in the standings.

At Legion Field, Evangelist Billy Graham preaches to 35,000 people. The audience, the choir, the staff of ushers are integrated.

Three Negroes receive diplomas along with the white students in graduation ceremonies at two high schools. Their parents are in the auditorium. No incidents.

Negroes sit on nine of the 10 subcommittees of the Community Affairs Committee, a biracial group set up to study, not only racial problems, but city administration in general.

RACE WAS CLOSE

Two Negroes ran for constable in a recent election. They lost to whites, but one race was close—1,841 to 1,894.

A new bank employs Negro and white tellers. Of its 14 security officers, nine are Negroes.

While the racial situation in Birmingham is far from settled and the possibility of demonstrations still exist, there is much in the record of this city to make you rub your eyes in disbelief, remembering the situation as it was June 2, 1963.

Thousands of Negroes demonstrating in the streets . . . fire hoses, police dogs . . . jail overflowing . . . a community taut as a bowstring, especially at night.

A rickety truck ending the thunder in the streets . . . then the bombings and shootings . . . "dynamite hill" in the Negro residential district . . . finally, Sept. 14, four little Negro girls killed when their church was bombed.

The segregationist has not suddenly become an integrationist. But he may have decided it is better to make accommodations than to have more demonstrations and bombings.

Rumors continually circulate that Negroes will begin demonstrating again.

White businessmen who work to ease racial tensions still get the midnight phone calls, threatening them, their wives and children.

Hotels, motels, restaurants, remain segregated.

ARMORED CAR TO PROTECT K

STOCKHOLM (AP) — An armored limousine once used by U.S. president will protect Nikita Khrushchev when the Soviet premier visits Sweden, the newspaper Af-tenbladet reported Friday.

The newspaper said the car once was used by presidents Truman and Eisenhower.

Night School Course On Marriage Under Study Here

A night school for young people contemplating marriage is being considered by a cross-section of Victoria's church ministers.

The suggestion comes from Rev. G. Howard Turpin, minister of Esquimalt United Church and chairman of the Victoria presbytery, United Church of Canada.

"We have not formulated any specific ideas yet," Mr. Turpin said, "but the idea would be to offer instruction to young men and women on legal, financial, medical, domestic and spiritual matters."

"Such instruction might prevent young people from either getting married too hastily and ending up in the divorce courts."

Mr. Turpin has already discussed his idea with Msgr. Michael O'Connell of St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church.

"There are counselling services in this city which might help in the development of such classes."

Said Canon Butler:

"Of 28 members of the clergy who recently answered a questionnaire on the subject, only three were aware of any other form of preparing young people for marriage other than through private counselling by the clergy themselves."

WORTH CHECK

"Advising young people is a difficult problem, but I think Mr. Turpin's idea is quite sound and is worth investigating."

Msgr. O'Connell said:

"I feel it is possible for the churches and community groups to work together and provide advice and guidance to young people regardless of denomination."

Scranton Starts Delegate Drive

WASHINGTON (AP) — Governor William Scranton of Pennsylvania today begins a six-state tour in an attempt to win renominating convention delegates and show the Goldwater bandwagon as it rolls toward the Republican presidential nomination.

But since he opened his campaign last Friday, Scranton has ticked up little concrete support, while Senator Barry Goldwater has been adding to his already commanding lead—619 to Scranton's 113 delegates by Associated Press count.

Tuesday, Texas Republicans are likely to push Goldwater over the top—the 655 needed to nominate—by pledging their 56 delegate votes to him.

Scranton, who has to sway uncommitted delegates and win some of those already in Goldwater's column, starts off in Des Moines, Iowa, late today. Before the week is out he plans stops in Topeka, Kan., Minneapolis, Minn., St. Louis, Mo., Denver, Colo., and Boston.

HAVE 146 DELEGATES

These six states have a total of 146 convention delegates, more than one-fifth the 655 needed for nomination.

SEAT BELTS BLAMED FOR FACIAL INJURIES

VANCOUVER (CP) — Seat belts save lives but they make more work for the doctor, says a Victoria physician. Dr. Malcolm Graham said in an interview here Friday: "Seat belts are undoubtedly saving lives but with a consequent increase in lesser injuries."

Facial injuries are particularly common, he said.

In a collision the body pivots about the seat belt and the person's face strikes the dashboard or steering wheel.

"About 75 or 80 per cent of all facial fractures occur in car accidents," he said.

He said shoulder harnesses to keep the body from pitching forward would eliminate many such facial injuries.

Five Die in B.C. Traffic, 1 on New 70 MPH Freeway

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Five persons were killed on British Columbia's highways during the weekend in a series of grinding crashes in which 12 others suffered injuries.

Most spectacular crash occurred Sunday in Delta near Vancouver. Irene Bernice Calvert of Burnaby was killed and seven others injured when two cars collided, then slammed into a parked car.

Seconds later a fourth car struck the wreckage of the other three.

Robin Walters, 16, of Surrey Cal-

died Sunday and three children were injured when the family car was killed when two cars overturned on the Trans-Canada Highway near the Fraser Valley community of Abbotsford. The accident occurred on the first weekend after opening of the new 70-mile-an-hour Port Mann freeway.

The other fatalities:

Donald Francis McGrath, 40, of Coquitlam, killed when a car went through a red light early Saturday and crashed into three other vehicles, injuring two other persons;

Patrick Nolan, 68, of Vancouver, killed when his car went out of control Sunday at an approach to the Second Narrows Bridge across Vancouver harbor;

Peter Kalmakoff, 6, of Shore-acres, killed when struck by a car as he walked along Highway 3A near his home Sunday.

HALIFAX, VICTORIA HARDEST HIT

Disarming Effect Studied

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Halifax and Victoria are likely to be most seriously affected by the problem of people having to move elsewhere in the event of disarmament, Dr. Gideon Rosenbluth, a University of British Columbia professor, said Sunday.

Dr. Rosenbluth said the cities have large percentages of their workers concentrated in defence-sensitive employment.

He was delivering a paper on the problems of regional and occupational mobility in the event of disarmament to the Canadian Political Science Association's conference on statistics.

and assemblers of electrical and electronic equipment, and aircraft mechanics and repairmen.

He said according to 1961 figures, Halifax had a total labor force of 73,000 with 20,000, or 27 per cent, in defence-sensitive industries. Victoria had 55,400 workers, 11,000 or 20 per cent of them in defence-sensitive industries.

Other towns had high percentages of their labor forces in defence-sensitive industries, but the number of people involved was not at the same magnitude.

Dr. Rosenbluth gave a rough idea of occupations likely to be seriously affected by disarmament. Leading these are fitters

“Dear Holly:

Sometimes I hate men.

My husband is always telling me
I can't handle money properly.”

“Dear Constant Reader:

It doesn't surprise me.

He could probably learn a few things about money himself.”

Sometimes we get mad at Holly.

She's in charge of a special department at The Bank that takes a very one-sided view of banking problems: Namely a woman's.

Each month she exchanges letters with women who have all kinds of problems about money. How to save. How to handle it. How to spend it.

Traditionally, this is supposed to be a special preserve for men. But Holly doesn't think so. So she's making it her business to help women take the major role in money management. Sort of a Carrie Nation of the banking business.

If you think Holly Armstrong is wasting her time, you should know that 60% of banking in the country is already being done by women. So that gives Holly a pretty impressive majority.

You can get her woman's view of banking or money problems just by writing to her at this address: Holly Armstrong, 55 King Street West, Toronto, Ontario. Or drop into your nearest branch and ask for the manager.

And don't feel bad about being a man.

Flood Aid Hits Target

VANCOUVER (CP) — The fund drive to aid west coast tidal wave victims has reached its goal—balancing the assessed damage total of almost $1,500,000.

Edward Benson, chairman of the Alberni Valley and West Coast Disaster Fund, made the announcement Saturday and said final payments totalling about $375,000 will be distributed the week of June 22.

The fund was started to aid people whose property was hit by crashing tidal waves resulting from the Alaska earthquake Good Friday.

The fund paid money covering 75 per cent of assessed damages a month ago after the provincial government donated $800,000 and the federal government $250,000.

Balance of the money came from civic, service, church, industrial, labor and individual sources across Canada.

285-65 VOTE AT DUNCAN

Museum Site Purchase Approved

DUNCAN—Ratepayers here Saturday approved an $18,000 money bylaw to help purchase a 19-acre site for the new Cowichan Valley Forest Museum at Drinkwater Road and Soomeno Lake.

The money represents Duncan's share of the $37,000 purchase price. North Cowichan municipality has agreed to provide a similar amount, while the village of Lake Cowichan has pledged the remaining 10 per cent.

Only 350 of the 1,450 eligible voters cast their ballots.

A total of 285 voted in favor and 65 against.

Mayor Jack Dobson blamed the poor turnout on the choice of Saturday as voting day.

He said municipalities do not have any other choice as Saturday voting now is compulsory under a provincial law.

Mayor Dobson said he and Ald. B. W. W. Cocks had "never worked so hard to get people out to vote," phoning about 70 per cent of the 1,450 eligible voters.

DUAL MUFFLER ORDER STUDIED FOR TRUCKS

Feasibility of compelling big, semi-trailer lumber trucks to use a system of dual mufflers was to be studied today by Victoria traffic committee as part of its campaign to reduce their noise.

A representative of an eastern manufacturing firm was to give a technical outline of the equipment to the committee.

Chairman Ald. Millard Mooney said it would help the partially-successful battle to reduce noise nuisance from out-of-town trucks which roar down Government Street to Ogden Point docks.

"We are having some success," he said. "Several merchants have spoken to me confirming that there has been a definite reduction in noise."

He said this has been accomplished by banning use of the shrill air or gas-driven horns and also vigorous enforcement of the truck load limits.

ECONOMICALLY SPEAKING

U.S. Illiteracy Shocks Banker

The United States is suffering from "economic illiteracy," William F. Kelly, president of the American Bankers' Association, said today.

Here from Philadelphia to address the 59th annual convention of the Oregon Bankers' Association at the Empress Hotel, Mr. Kelly said:

"A recent survey showed that about 68 per cent of U.S. citizens don't even understand the basic principles of the free enterprise system."

"This is a deplorable situation which should be remedied by proper education in our schools and colleges."

Mr. Kelly said he could offer no opinion as to whether similar conditions prevail in Canada. But he said the majority of U.S. high school graduates have only a very limited knowledge of economics.

He suggested high school students should be given regular instruction in family budgeting, personal insurance, personal investment and the various banking services available to them.

"These students are the teachers of tomorrow," he said, "and we bankers have a duty to persuade the educational authorities that economic training should be part of every teacher's equipment."

He added that the American Bankers' Association has gone on record in favor of "raising the economic literacy of the United States."

Mr. Kelly, who is president of the First Pennsylvania Trust Company, Philadelphia, said there is a strong relationship between Canadian and U.S. banking.

"In the last two years," he said, "many of the larger U.S. corporations which have excess cash on hand have invested that cash in Canada."

He declined to comment on the proposed government-sponsored Bank of British Columbia, but said it might be compared to the Farmers' Bank of Delaware in which the state government owns between 25 or 30 per cent of the stock.

WORKED WELL

"This is a successful enterprise," he said, "but I have the impression the private banking system has worked very well in Canada and the United States."

Some 235 top bankers and their wives had registered at the Empress Hotel when the Oregon Bankers' Association began its second Victoria convention this morning. The association held its first convention here, with a somewhat smaller attendance, in 1955.

"This is the third largest convention we have ever organized," said executive secretary Lester E. Thayer from Portland.

B.C. Labor and Education Minister Leslie Peterson will address the convention Tuesday morning on "What Every Banker Should Know." U.S. senator Wayne L. Morse of Oregon will be unable to attend as scheduled.

At an earlier police court hearing it was stated that Morgan, a grade 13 student at Claremont High School, was walking home along the Pacific Bay Highway when a car stopped after he "thumbed" it for a ride.

He said there were several youths in the car and he saw beer bottles in it. He did not get into the car when he saw the beer, but one of the occupants jumped out and forced him in.

He was taken to a remote section of Durrance Road, near Rudy's Zoo, where he was beaten up, robbed of $100 and left by the roadside.

'Financial Gain Chief Objective'

A Victoria man who feels he's "done wrong to no one" was sent to jail for five years today for conspiring to bring Chinese into Canada illegally.

Chong Wong Ming, better known as Peter Chong, of 817 Kings Road, operated an immigration racket that Magistrate William Ostler described as "calculated and planned in great detail."

The magistrate said Chong's main motive in bringing Chinese into Canada was to make money. Evidence showed he received at least $34,000 from the illegal immigrants.

MONEY REFUNDED

But many of them got their money back after the racket was uncovered by an intensive RCMP investigation, Chong's lawyer said.

Crown Prosecutor W. R. McIntyre said Chinese Canadians who couldn't bring their Hong Kong relatives legally into this country arranged for it illegally through Chong.

He obtained passport photographs of the person who wanted to come to Canada and then applied for a passport for them using the name of a Chinese who was born in Canada and had either left this country or died.

EXPENSES HIGH

Mr. McIntyre said that Chong obtained 29 passports altogether and it is not known exactly how many persons entered the country illegally as a result of his scheme.

George Gregory, Chong's lawyer, said his expenses were high since he had to arrange for the passports to be delivered by courier to the Chinese in Hong Kong.

Mr. Gregory said his client also refunded money to the illegal immigrants after his scheme was discovered. He said that when it became known that Chong could arrange to get Chinese into this country he was besieged by their relatives.

ORIENTAL' VIEW

Mr. Gregory said that Chong had an "Oriental approach" to the whole matter of bringing Chinese here.

Magistrate Ostler said he understood and sympathized with the humanitarian aspects of bringing "wretched and unhappy" Chinese into Canada, "a better land" than where they were living.

But, he said, "financial gain was predominant" so far as Chong was concerned.

TYPE OF GAMBLE

The magistrate said that Chong appeared to be "stoical" about having been caught and feels no remorse at having broken the law. He told Chong, "You seem to consider that breaking the law is a type of gamble."

The magistrate said he would be as lenient as possible but the sentence had to have a "deterrent effect" in order to discourage others from similar "whole-scale illegal transactions."

He sentenced Chong to five years on four charges and two years on three others, with all the sentences to run concurrently.

Youths Plead Not Guilty Of Abduction

Four Victoria youths pleaded not guilty in County Court here today when charged with assaulting 19-year-old Bill Morgan of Saanich Road and robbing him of $10, a camera and a wrist watch on April 7 last.

They also pleaded not guilty to a second charge of kidnapping Morgan.

Accused are Charles Michael Keith Ash, 18, of 860 Parklands; Eugene Hunt, 18, of 348 Michigan; Russell Tschirriter, 18, of 946 Ellery, and Lloyd Keith De Wolfe, 18, of 1019 Balmoral.

At an earlier police court hearing it was stated that Morgan, a grade 13 student at Claremont High School, was walking home along the Pacific Bay Highway when a car stopped after he "thumbed" it for a ride.

He said there were several youths in the car and he saw beer bottles in it. He did not get into the car when he saw the beer, but one of the occupants jumped out and forced him in.

'WON'T TOLERATE ABUSE OF POLICE'

Sea Hi-Jinks Land 4 in Locker

A Victoria youth apologized in RCMP court today to the police man he assaulted while being arrested on Sunday.

Ronald Fagin, 4435 Wilkinson, was charged with assaulting Constable Colin Barker of Central Saanich with intent to resist arrest and to causing a disturbance while drunk.

Three other youths, with him at the time, were charged with obstructing Constable Barker in the execution of his duty.

All four, who were kept in police cells overnight, pleaded guilty.

The three others charged are: Alec Caird, of 3592 Shelburne; Terence Scott, of 1078

Esquimalt Road, and Dunn Koller, of 1003 Hillside.

DISTURBANCE

Central Saanich chief, Fred Brownlee, said he got a call to the launching ramp at West Saanich Indian Reserve at about 5:30 p.m. Sunday, where a group of youths were causing a disturbance.

The chief said he went out in a third boat and came on a boat containing about 10 persons. The windshield and tiller had been smashed and the occupants were having trouble steering.

REFUSED

They refused to listen when he told them to take the boat in so he went back to shore and radioed for help.

The trouble began when the boat eventually returned, he said.

Fagin was placed under arrest for causing a minor disturbance and the others helped him.

He added that he thought drink had caused it all.

Dr. Larry Jack, Vancouver, will submit a minority report.

JUNE 25 SENTENCE

After apologizing to Constable Barker, Fagin apologized to the court for the trouble he had caused.

Said Magistrate Denzil Ash: "We will not tolerate abuse of police officers. Their duties are not always pleasant and we will not stand having them kicked around."

All four were remanded in their own recognition to Central Saanich Court on June 25 for sentence.

Q.—In cases of accidents and emergencies, how is it determined to which hospital victims are taken? B.J.A.

Q.—What is the purpose of a person's appendix? T.R.

It was the band's first try at the festival.

Jack Donin, chairman of the band, said he could not recall any band ever winning the trophy on its first try.

Wash and Wax at Same Time With This New Car Shampoo

By PENNY SAVER

Spit and a polish may do for your boots, but when it comes to washing and polishing your car, a little more "elbow grease" is needed.

But, thanks to a mainland firm, we can now eliminate the muss of pails of soapy water, bottles of wax and numerous assorted rags and polishing cloths.

Company has produced a new car shampoo that washes and waxes in one easy, complete operation.

Regular price of 98 cents has now been reduced to 49 cents for an eight-ounce bottle.

Liquid removes grease, dirt and stains, and deposits a film of protective wax. Mix an ounce of this cleaner in a 2½-gallon pail of warm water. Rinse car thoroughly with cool, clean water and then wash with the solution.

While washing, maintain a good supply of suds on the car but do not let them dry on the surface. Rinse car and wipe windows with chamois or clean, soft cloth to remove wax film. Allow car to dry without wiping off the film.

No wiping or polishing is needed and car will dry with a brilliant, long-lasting shine.

The use of a special pile wash mitt will make your job even easier. These are priced at $1.29 and $1.10. After use, rinse mitt in clean, lukewarm water and hang to dry away from artificial heat.

Car cleaning days coming up? Then call Penny at 382-3131 and ask for name and location of shops selling these items.

DEAR ABBY . . .

The Dam Dried Up!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I once read somewhere that it is quite proper to say, "I don't give a dam," because a dam is a coin used in India. Is there any truth in this?

J.S.

DEAR J.S.: A "dam" was indeed a former copper coin used in India. But it has been so many years since anyone has had a dam to give that the expression today is more profane than proper.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is an adorable boy. Oh, he's not that cute, but heck, neither am I. He's 19 and I am 13. The only ones who know how I feel about him are my two best girl friends. They say I should give up and forget him because he is too old for me, but I have tried and I can't. I have felt this way about him since I was nine and a half.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Learn to Dive By Just Falling Into the Water

It is difficult for different generations and ages to find a common meeting ground. No matter how much you love your children or how much they love you, there are naturally gaps in communication and understanding.

So, it is always a bonus when different generations can share the same interests, and it is especially wonderful when this mutual interest is fun and also promotes health. I am thinking of swimming!

Swimming is also a great exercise for many other reasons. It is a normalizer for the figure. It builds lovely curves, gets rid of bulges and does not overdevelop muscles, unless you are training for competitive races.

It is also extremely relaxing. It is recommended for those who are tense and nervous, those who cannot sleep, and those who wish to gain weight. Swimming and walking are often allowed when other exercise is ruled out because of some physical disability.

If you have been swimming, but crawling into the water, why not take a plunge toward a more youthful attitude and learn to dive? It is simply amazing what a little triumph

Cave Dweller Holds An 'At Home'

By PAT DUFOUR

Scores of Victorians visited a sea cave Sunday afternoon. It's complete with kitchen, bedroom, bathroom and living room.

In fact, it's the Milburn Drive home of Mrs. Emerald Betts, a 77-year-old beachcomber. She named her house, "Sea Cave" and, thanks to her ingenuity, it would seem more at home at the sea's edge than where it stands now, on a hill overlooking the Esquimalt Lagoon.

Visit to Mrs. Betts' home was arranged to raise funds for the British Columbia Women's Institute, of which Mrs. Betts is a member.

This modern-day Mrs. Robinson Crusoe has managed to bring the "great outdoors" inside to the point that a visitor almost expects to hear the sea tumbling in through the front door!

There are no conventional drapes in Mrs. Betts' house-keeping plans. She supplants these with yardage of fish nets, looped and festooned with strings of "sand dollars," star fish and shells.

The small living room is apt to give the casual visitor a start. A wall-length mirror gives the illusion of an archway, being bordered with a colorful arrangement of "flowers" and "leaves" made from fragments of abalone shells. One is tempted to walk right through without a second thought!

Mrs. Betts travels thousands of miles in her small car to Port Renfrew and Comox, searching for "treasures." She asserts that she never picks up a piece of driftwood or shell unless she can first see a "dog" (bird) or interesting shape in it.

To her, seaweed is something more than an aromatic means of feeding a garden bed. She has many lamps that boast shades of stretched red seaweed, garnered from an up-island bed.

Others are made of strings of seaweed, basket-weaved into interesting designs.

One such lamp is topped with a seal's tooth which she "broke off the animal" on one of her field trips.

Another lamp is made of whale bone which she found buried in the sand.

Many of her pieces feature fungi which she has picked up in the forest. Others are fashioned of sponge which she insists is plentiful: "if you know where to look."

One of the tablecentres has a fraction of a shark's jaw, used as the cover of a "rickshaw."

Born and brought up in Eureka, Calif., this doughty beachcomber headed for Canada when she married.

"My husband was a railroad man with the Canadian Pacific Railway. We lived in Calgary but when he died I lost no time heading west for the ocean."

Her son, Dale, runs a fish boat and through him she manages to get extra "trimmings" such as trolling bells that add interest to her creations.

Even the garden looks as if it would be more at home within wetting distance of the sea.

Driftwood "dragons" and "French poodles" are all within easy admiring distance of a comfortable garden chair, made by the owner from driftwood, cork and shells.

She'll also edge a coral "hurricane lantern" of this sea-mentioned "Grandma Moses."

"But," she complains wistfully, "it's a little difficult to get cork these days. Boats don't get blown up as much as they used to."

Parties Honor Miss Lynore Blake

Several showers have been held to honor Miss Lynore Blake, whose marriage takes place next Saturday.

Gifts were in an artificial "mortar board," decorated in University of Victoria's science colors of gold and black, when Mrs. J. Bradshaw gave a shower in the Cumberland Road home of her mother, Mrs. J. Bateman. Groom-elect is a 1964 science graduate. Co-hostesses were Mrs. Bateman and Mrs. H. Bradshaw.

A gold floral arrangement and tanning candles centred the refreshment table at which presided the chosen attendants, Mrs. C. Bradshaw, Mrs. D. Begg and Miss Schickerowsky.

Also invited were Mrs. P. Hendriksen, Mrs. K. Gayette, Mrs. L. Main, Mrs. P. Howland, Mrs. C. Bradshaw, Mrs. D. Begg, Mrs. E. Seaman, Mrs. J. Pettigrew, Mrs. J. Jones and Mrs. M. Clayton gave a shower in the Dolphin Road home of the bride-elect's parents. Cymbidium orchid corsages were received by Miss Blake, her mother, grandmother, Mrs. F. C. Blake and groom-elect's mother.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—"Carol, what's your ambition . . . now that you're a smash hit in 'Fade Out—Fade In' . . . ready to star in your own TV series in the fall . . . what would you like to do next?"

"I want to get a house!"

Carol was sitting in a CBS dressing room with her legs over the chair the day they taped the last Garry Moore show.

"A house?"

"CAROL: I never lived in a house in my whole life. Always apartments. With the Murphy beds coming out of the wall. And I'm going to take up golf this summer. I was entertaining the idea of getting a kiddie pool on the roof of our apartment building but they said I couldn't. Too much water!"

Q: Don't some people have pools?

CAROL: If they have a private terrace which I don't. So maybe I'll just get some garden hose and wet myself down.

Q: But what would you like to do beyond this professionally?

CAROL: I may sound corny but I miss the tube! I was always so theatre-conscious, but I found theatre people are such snobs about us. Why would I be on Broadway if it hadn't been for the Garry Moore show?

Q: Stage shows are harder for you?

CAROL: Yes. You have to be completely up all the time. You're like a race horse. So you know how long I'm signed to do this play? Twenty months. I'm not through till January 1965 . . . no! I mean, January 1966!

Q: Is it that you're ambitious?

CAROL: No, brainless!

Q: How will you squeeze in the Entertainer TV series?

CAROL: They will work it around me. They will tape it Friday at 6, it goes on the air at 8:30 when I'm at the theatre. Saturday, I do a matinee and night show. You know what I'll be doing Sunday. Sleeping!

Q: When do you have time for your baby?

CAROL: I wake her up every night at 12 and play with her till 1, and she goes right back to sleep. Then the next morning, of course.

Q: You must be sentimental about stepping into Garry Moore's spot?

upon plankton for their food. They found that plankton thrives in the saltiest water, some in cool coastal waters and some in the colder waters of the deep blue ocean. Rich meadows of plankton spring up and thrive, drifting with the currents, as the ocean changes from cool to cooler with the seasons.

A drop of plankton-rich sea water may look murky with foggy fragments. Enlarged under a microscope, the cloudy specks become pretty plants and a vast assortment of elfin animals. There are one-celled algae, small cousins of the ragged seaweeds and dainty diatom plants decked in ornate shells of hard silica.

There are floating fish eggs, glassy worms and the bug-eyed larvae of many bigger sea dwellers. There are assorted radiolarians with miniature shells in crusty coils of silica, teeming populations of pteropods and globigerina shells of chalky lime.

The masses of tiny drifters were named plankton, and experts at once saw that many larger sea dwellers depend on it.

Plankton is one of man's most important discoveries and it was discovered by a busy doctor who had a hobby to enjoy in his spare time. As the experts study plankton it becomes more and still more important, and someday it may solve the food problems of the hungry human race.

Dr. Vaughan Thompson was a surgeon whose hobby was studying the wonders of ocean life. He traced the life history of a crusty crab, using a fine net to sift up its tiny eggs and infant larvae from the water and a microscope to enlarge them. He saw that sea water is populated with a teeming assortment of tiny plants and animals too small for human eyes to see. This was way back in 1828, 10 years after the first iron ship put out to sea.

The midget plants use sunshine to make their food, and they become food for the midget animals. The teeming population of microscopic midgets is eaten by shrimps and sardines that are eaten by herring and silvery mackerel that are eaten by cod and giant tuna that are devoured by toothy sharks.

DON MATHISON
Bi-Bi speech

'Holy Smoke,
I Won!'

A short, simple and to-the-point telegram brought cheers from Victoria Jaycees at the Presidential Ball in the Club Sirocco on Saturday.

The message, from Jaycee Don Mathison, just said: "Holy Smoke—I won."

It meant he had come out tops in the Jaycees' western final oratorical contest in Calgary with his talk on Bilingualism and Biculturalism.

He will now go on to the national finals next month at Kelowna.

Visiting Jaycees from Portland, Seattle and Vancouver were present in Victoria on Saturday to see new Victoria president Don Paulin officially installed.

Victoria Jaycee Terry Farmer received the Outstanding Jaycee of the Year award and Trevor Barlow received the leadership award.

Fourteen Arrested in Santo Domingo

SANTO DOMINGO (AP) — The head of the Dominican Republic's ruling triumvirate has reported 14 arrests in connection with a fiery and bloody series of explosions that ripped an army ammunition dump.

Donald Reid Cabral, leader of the three-man civilian junta, said Saturday night that the government possesses information suggesting the possibility that the preparation and commission of the explosives was plotted by Fidel Castro's Cuban regime.

OPEN-HEART MASSAGE REVIVES DROWNED BOY

BURNABY (CP) — An apparently drowned boy was brought back to life Sunday by a team of doctors who performed open-heart massage in efforts to revive him.

John Gable, 7, was discovered lying unconscious in about four feet of water at the bottom of a community swimming pool. Efforts by a life guard, an inhalator crew and ambulance failed to revive the boy.

However, after open heart massage by doctors at a hospital the boy's heart began to beat and color returned to his face. He was in critical condition.

Briton Weds His Lottery Girl

LONDON (AP) — John Butler, 27, is honeymooning today with the girl he won in a threepenny lottery.

Butler bought a three-pence ticket during a charity drive by students of Birmingham College of Technology.

The prize was a blind date with any member of the college's net-ball team. Butler won, and chose Jill Teague, now 20.

One date followed another. They were married during the weekend. Said

Jill's mother, Mrs. Evelyn Teague:

"People thought the lottery was in bad taste and I must admit I thought it a bit funny. But the outcome could not have been happier. They are ideally suited."

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

Here's to the ladies, God 'bless 'em
Amanda Blake is about to make a million-dollar deal. Miss Blake, who for nine years has played Kitty in the CBS-TV Gunsmoke series, is reported negotiating with the network to sell her residuals in 235 half-hour shows to the network. The price under discussion is reported around $1,000,000.

She has a better-than-average residuals deal with the series, according to Variety. Under terms of the deal now being discussed, her stake in these would go to CBS in return for about $1,000,000 spread out over a period of years to get around the internal revenue people.

The discussions do not include Miss Blake's residuals stake in about 110 hour-long segments of the series, one of the longest on television. The western converted from the half-hour to the hour-length several years ago.

Stephen

Thomas' weekly series, which is leaving the air next season.

Another of the performers is Jeanette Nolan, of the cancelled Richard Boone anthology series.

The same producers who turned out Elizabeth Taylor's tour of London for television have now set their second similar project, "Sophia Loren in Rome." It is scheduled for broadcast on ABC-TV for an hour on Nov. 5.

Lynn Fontanne, with her husband, Alfred Lunt, will star in "The Magnificent Yankee" on Hallmark Hall of Fame early in February. The Lunts, probably the theatre's most distinguished acting couple, will be seen in the roles of Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes and Holmes' beloved wife, Fanny Dixwell Holmes.

June Harding, another graduate of the defunct Richard Boone series, will become Robert Reed's girl friend in The Defenders and still another gal from the Boone repertory group, Laura Devon, will be a guest on the Telephone Hour in the fall.

Phyllis Avery has been set for a continuing role in the Mr. Novak series Two daughters of the late Jerome (Curley) Howard, one of the three original Three Stooges, have been awarded $15,000 in settlement of their suit against the present Stooges for a share of the income from television exposure of the comedy series.

Dinah Shore, who has signed with ABC-TV for next season as hostess of some night-time variety specials and some daytime drama-documentaries for women, will do one of the latter on the subject of "The Menace of Age," for Dec. 10. One of the stars will be Marjorie Ford, the long-time wife on Danny

LYNN SEYMOUR
... for Dame Margot

Canadian Girl Subs for Star In Ballet Role

LONDON (CP) — Canadian ballerina Lynn Seymour, with only a few hours' rehearsal in a role she had never danced before, substituted for Dame Margot Fonteyn in La Sylphide at the Bath Festival Saturday night.

But the ballet critics were not there to see her.

Miss Seymour, 24-year-old daughter of a Vancouver dentist, received word Friday that she would be dancing opposite Russian star Rudolf Nureyev in place of Dame Margot, who flew to Panama to be with her husband, wounded in a shooting there earlier in the week.

The critics attended Dame Margot's opening performance but were not invited to the hastily arranged performance Saturday. Anyway they were attending another ballet opening night at London's Drury Lane.

Mrs. Joan Pring, one of Dame Margot's managers, said Miss Seymour rehearsed all Friday evening but Nureyev, occupied at Drury Lane, did not arrive in Bath until after noon Saturday.

"Then they had their only rehearsal together," Mrs. Pring said, "but they didn't even have time to go through the whole ballet."

"But Lynn was marvellous. The audience was thrilled with her performance and she was called back many times for curtain calls."

The Saturday performance was the final one of the festival.

FLAG DEBATE STALLED

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons was all set for the start of the flag debate today when Stanley Knowles (NDP-Winnipeg North Centre) got the floor on a point of order.

Mr. Knowles contended that the form of the government resolution on the flag is a breach of privilege of the Commons.

Mr. Knowles, an expert on Commons rules, then began to develop his point.

When the daily question period ended, clerk assistant T. R. Montgomery read the government order of the day—that is, the flag debate was formally called.

The Liberals began applauding loudly, expecting Prime Minister Pearson to start the debate. The galleries were packed. There was standing room only.

But Mr. Knowles caught the Speaker's eye.

GOES TO MIKE

18,000 Names On Petition For Plebiscite

OTTAWA (CP)—A petition bearing 17,873 names, mainly from Toronto and Southern Ontario communities, was left at Prime Minister Pearson's office today urging a national plebiscite on the flag question.

The petition, sponsored by the Emergency Committee to Save the Red Ensign, was brought to Ottawa by a delegation headed by Sherwood Sugden, Toronto publicist, and spread out on the Centre Block steps before going to Mr. Pearson's office.

Mr. Sugden, who said he was in his late 20s and who declined to reveal his political party sympathies, said the signatures came from people in every province and major city in Canada.

"More signatures are pouring in and we'll be back with more petitions to present to Parliament," he told reporters.

Sheets of paper bearing the signatures were pasted together to make a roll more than 350 feet long.

The delegation carried the petition to the steps and presented it to Ralph B. Cowan (L.-York-Humber), Robert C. Coates (PC-Cumberland), H. W. Herridge (NDP-Kootenay West) and Bert Leboe (SC-Cariboo).

SENSIBLE APPROACH

Mr. Coates, a strong advocate of the Red Ensign, said the petition's request for a plebiscite "is the most sensible approach yet to this question." Mr. Cowan, also a partisan for the ensign, said the petitioners had "more right to be here than flying an unauthorized flag on Parliament Hill last Friday."

A spokesman for the committee said honorary members of the group include Gen. H. D. G. Crear, columnist Bruce West, L. Stevenson, retired RCAF vice-marshal, and broadcaster Foster Hewitt.

A spokesman said the committee is co-operating with the Royal Canadian Legion, the IODE, the Canadian Corps and the Canadian Patriotic Society but has no political affiliation.

ONEAL 'ABSENT'

B.C. Federation of Labor secretary Pat O'Neal, who has previously sat on the striking committee, had reportedly left his office today.

PEDIPULATORS' better than robots

UPROOTS TREES, STEPS OVER CARS

Amplified Man a Monster

SCHENECTADY, N.Y. (AP)

A group of engineers is working on a project which will enable a man to uproot a huge tree, step over a parked car and tote a heavy telephone pole up the side of a steep cliff.

All this and more is predicted for the man of the future by those assigned to the army project at the General Electric Company's advanced technology laboratories.

In its simplest sense, said Ralph S. Mosher, the plan consists of encasing a man in a 17-foot-high metal skeleton which he can manipulate through his own arm, leg and body movements.

Mosher, one of the developers, said the device will have a distinct advantage over a mechanical man or robot in that it will have the benefit of a human brain to guide its movements from inside.

When the contraption is completed, Mosher said, a man will be able to run at high speeds for protracted lengths of time and stride effortlessly through deep mud.

The machine will amplify the power of a normal man's arms and legs, allowing him to perform feats of great strength and endurance.

Mosher said the machine's arms and legs will mimic movements of the man inside. As one man inside lifts a leg as though he were stepping over a fallen log, the movement will be amplified sufficiently to lift the machine over a parked car.

Mosher said basic concepts of the pedipulator have been proven workable in a pair of mechanical hands developed six years ago for remote handling of radioactive equipment.

Flood Threat Easing Across the Province

By The Canadian Press

British Columbia's spring flood danger appeared to be easing today.

The Skeena dropped almost a foot at Terrace, bringing relief to washed-out communities between Prince Rupert and Prince George.

The Northern Trans-Provincial Highway, cut east and west of Terrace, was back in operation for restricted road traffic. And Canadian National Railway began moving trains again on the track which runs parallel to the highway.

The Peace River was easing off its flow rate at Hudson Hope where previously concern had been felt at the $73,000,000 Portage Mountain dam construction site.

Officials said the flows rose to 310,000 cubic feet a second at the weekend but were dropping. A coffer dam which holds back river waters from the construction site of the main dam had been heightened as a precaution.

But the Peace River continued to cause concern at Hudson Hope, site of construction of the $73,000,000 Portage Mountain dam.

The Peace's rate of flow came close to 300,000 cubic feet a second at the weekend. Work was begun to increase the height of a coffer dam—already heightened 10 feet—by another five feet as a precaution.

The tunnels can cope with a flow of 320,000 cubic feet a second.

In the Fraser Valley the news was good. Federal water resources engineer Tom Smith said he believed the flood threat from the Fraser is just about over as he watched the river level recede slightly.

By Sunday night the Fraser was reported holding steady at 23,20 feet at Quebec, down fractionally to 31.55 feet at Hope, and dropping an inch lower at Mission. And a high tide which flowed into the Fraser estuary Sunday night caused no further flooding.

A crew of 35 men worked through the weekend bolstering a small dike in the Agassiz area which had shown signs of weakening. All other dikes were holding, although some were seeping slightly.

The Pacific Great Eastern line was still washed out in the vicinity of Lillooet. But crews expected to have the tracks running again shortly.

There was some concern in the Kootenays where the Columbia continued to rise.

DUAL MUFFLER ORDER STUDIED FOR TRUCKS

Feasibility of compelling big, semi-trailer lumber trucks to use a system of dual mufflers was to be studied today by Victoria traffic committee as part of its campaign to reduce their noise.

A representative of an eastern manufacturing firm was to give a technical outline of the equipment to the committee.

Chairman Ald. Millard Mooney said it would help the partially-successful battle to reduce noise nuisance from out-of-town trucks which roar down Government Street to Ogden Point docks.

"We are having some success," he said. "Several merchants have spoken to me confirming that there has been a definite reduction in noise."

He said this has been accomplished by banning use of the shrill air or gas-driven horns and also vigorous enforcement of the truck load limits.

45c Proposed For Carpenters

Union Calls Meeting Tonight To Study Conciliation Report

Wage increases totalling 45 cents per hour over two years have been recommended for 450 Victoria carpenters in a majority conciliation report.

Carpenters involved are those in local 1598 working for employers registered with Victoria Building Industries Exchange.

The employers' representative will submit a minority report.

Carpenters will meet at 7:30 p.m. at Union Centre tonight to consider the conciliation proposals.

They had been seeking parity with Vancouver, with a one-year contract adding 60 cents per hour to their basic $3 rate.

The previous contract expired March 31.

In the majority report signed by conciliation board chairman Professor Noel Hall (UBC faculty of commerce) and employees' representative William Gaud (Canadian Labour Congress representative), it was recommended that:

• Wage increases be 20 cents June 15, 1964 (today); 5 cents Oct. 1; 10 cents April 1, 1965; 10 cents Oct. 1, 1965. Millwrights to receive an extra 25 cents over basic rate.

• Welfare fund worth 10 cents per hour effective Jan. 1, 1965, paid by employer to carpentry workers' welfare fund.

• Local travel up one cent to nine cents per mile.

• Call out time four hours at straight or overtime unless due to bad weather. (Previously regardless of weather.)

AGREEMENT

The board agreed generally on other clauses of the contract.

It recommended that in future negotiations, the parties try to maintain parity with the standard provincial agreement. Vancouver rates are above the standard agreement.

A builders' exchange spokesman said today the 25 employees involved have met and are now considering the report.

Another meeting may be held later, he said.

Dr. Larry Jack, Vancouver, will submit a minority report.

JUNE 25 SENTENCE

After apologizing to Constable Barker, Fagin apologized to the court for the trouble he had caused.

Said Magistrate Denzil Ashby: "We will not tolerate abuse of police officers. Their duties are not always pleasant and we will not stand having them kicked around."

All four were remanded in their own recognizance to Central Saanich Court on June 25 for sentence.

Summer Hours At City Hall

Victoria City Hall went on summer hours today—closing a half-hour earlier. It will be open from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., instead of 5 p.m., from now until Sept. 15.

Johnston Rites Set for Tuesday

"This is a successful enterprise," he said, "but I have the impression the private banking system has worked very well in Canada and the United States."

Some 235 top bankers and their wives had registered at the Empress Hotel when the Oregon Bankers' Association began its second Victoria convention this morning. The association held its first convention here, with a somewhat smaller attendance, in 1955.

"This is the third largest convention we have ever organized," said executive secretary Lester E. Thayer from Portland.

B.C. Labor and Education Minister Leslie Peterson will address the convention Tuesday morning on "What Every Banker Should Know."

'WON'T TOLERATE ABUSE OF POLICE'

Sea Hi-Jinks Land 4 in Locker

A Victoria youth apologized in RCMP court today to the policeman he assaulted while being arrested on Sunday.

Ronald Fagin, 4443 Wilkinson, was charged with assaulting Constable Colin Barker of Central Saanich with intent to resist arrest and to causing a disturbance while drunk.

The three others charged are: Alec Caird, of 3592 Shelbourne; Terence Scott, of 1078

Three other youths, with him at the time, were charged with obstructing Constable Barker in the execution of his duty.

Central Saanich chief, Fred Brownlee, said he got a call to the launching ramp at West Saanich Indian Reserve at about 5:30 p.m. Sunday, where a group of youths were causing a disturbance.

TOPICS of the DAY

Two of the six Red Ensigns fixed to masts erected along the Wharf Street side of Bastion Square went missing over the weekend.

They probably were stolen by kitefliers who shimmied up the poles — erected earlier this month to help decorate the square for the Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's) ceremony.

There was some speculation that the proposed new Canadian flag might appear in their place.

The annual reunion picnic of families from the Treherne-Holland area of Manitoba now living on the west coast will be held Sunday in Vancouver.

About 100 persons are expected to attend festivities which will begin at 2 p.m. in Maple Grove Park, 55th and Marine.

Further information is available to persons wishing to attend by telephoning Mrs. Frank Bowles at 478-4343.

Archbishop Harold Sexton of British Columbia will conduct a service of re-consecration in St. John's Anglican Church Sunday at 11 a.m.

Ask The Times

Q.—In cases of accidents and emergencies, how is it determined to which hospital victims are taken? B.J.A.

A.—Police take accident victims to nearest hospital, but if a person is not badly injured he might be taken to a hospital farther away if emergency rooms at a nearby hospital are known to be busy.

Q.—What is the purpose of a person's appendix? T.R.

A.—In humans, the appendix does not have a purpose. Some animals such as rodents have a long appendix which is used as a digestive organ.

Oak Bay zoning and planning committee tonight will discuss an application to construct a three-storey apartment building adjacent to the Oak Bay Beach Hotel; and another application to have the lot at Hampta and Cadboro Bay Road rezoned for retail use.

A thief stole $250 in a service station break-in at the weekend.

The burglary occurred at Gordon Thomas Service Station, 980 Hillside, and was discovered Sunday morning. Entry was made by breaking a window.

The burglar stole $250 in cash and cheques from what the operator thought was a secret hiding place.

Two women injured in a two-car collision Saturday at Harriet and Burnside were discharged after spending one day in hospital.

Mrs. Sarah Ralton, 72, of 4373 Prospect Lake Road, was reported to be driver of one of the cars involved. She and Christine Mastowy, 1020 Collingwood, were taken to St. Joseph's Hospital with abrasions.

Driver of the other car involved was Ian MacDonald, 871 Jasmine, police said.

A man escaped without a scratch in a motor vehicle accident on Pat Bay Highway that demolished his car Sunday morning.

Douglas Hunt, 1032 McGregor, lost control on a curve at Piedmont, near Elk Lake. His car hit a power pole which it sheared off at the base.

It then slid across the road and ended up 40 feet into an orchard.

Victoria Labour Council will meet Wednesday at 8 p.m. in Union Centre, 2750 Quadra.

During June, July and August, the council is meeting every third Wednesday instead of twice monthly.

Other winners were Velma Acres and Tony Marsh, second; Florence Curran and E. G. Robertson, third; Mrs. Dora Dupras and James Dupras, fourth; Dorothy McConnell and Harry Rolls, fifth; and Paul Smith and Leslie Stewart, sixth.

DEBATE STARTS

Separate Vote On Union Jack

OTTAWA (CP)—Commons Speaker Alan Macnaughton ruled today that the government's flag resolution should be split in two to allow MPs to vote separately on a maple leaf flag for Canada and on the Union Jack as a symbol of Canada's Commonwealth membership.

The Speaker made the ruling on the grounds that "strong objections" had been made to placing MPs in an embarrassing position on a complicated question containing two propositions. He declared—after a lengthy ramble through parliamentary precedents and history—that in Canada the Speaker of the Commons had the discretion to divide complicated motions.

His ruling was subject to appeal by any party in the House.

PROCEDURE TOPIC

Earlier Stanley Knowles, NDP member for Winnipeg North Centre, spelled out a procedure that he said would allow separate votes.

The Speaker said the vote would be conducted on the proposals for:

1. Three maple leaves on a field of white between vertical sections of blue on the edges of the flag as the official flag of Canada.

2. The Union Jack as a symbol of Canadian membership in the Commonwealth and Canada's allegiance to the Crown.

His decision climaxed 90 minutes of quiet debate on the procedure to be followed in dividing complicated resolutions into separate propositions for voting.

FINDS NO PRECEDENT

Speaker Macnaughton said he could find no clear precedent in Canadian parliamentary rules for dealing with such a situation.

In this case, he explained, the Canadian House follows the rules of the British Parliament as they currently exist.

On that basis, he made his decision to allow separate votes on the maple leaf flag and the Union Jack.

Before the Speaker's decision, Prime Minister Pearson said the government had no intention of proposing that the flag resolution be divided in two.

COMPANY, UNION IN DARK

Secrecy Shrouds Alberni Talks

Security-shrouded talks in the Mac-Powell Alberni Valley strike are being held without the knowledge of the parties directly involved in the strike, spokesmen claim.

Labour Minister Leslie Peterson told the Times Saturday that strike-settlement work was in progress, and his deputy William Sands predicts a "solution . . . within the next few days."

But representative of the striking Office Workers' Union Bill Lowe said he was "astonished" to hear talks were going on in Vancouver over the weekend. He was at the beach with his family at the time.

COMPANY UNAWARE

A MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd. source claims the company is unaware of any negotiating or talks taking place.

Mr. Peterson, back in Victoria after spending Saturday in Vancouver said "discussions" will continue until agreement is reached.

RED BANK HELPS TOWN AS TAXPAYERS DAWDLE

CHORLEYWOOD, Eng. (UPI)—The town council of this upper-class English community found a friend in a Soviet bank and has negotiated a $140,000 loan from its credit department.

"The council is in the red so we decided to borrow from the Reds," said Councillor H. J. Ryman, chairman of its finance committee. "Politics are not involved in this, and the loan is in pounds sterling, of course—no Russian rubles."

Ryman said the town needs the money to pay the wages of town employees, build new houses and repair roads.

The loan was negotiated with the London branch of the Peoples Bank of Moscow at 4% per cent interest. British banks charge 6 per cent.

"There was nothing to stop us from borrowing from an English bank," Ryman said. "It was just that the Russians had that amount available at the time."

The Peoples Bank of Moscow specializes in Anglo-Soviet trade and handles the sale of Russian gold on the London market. Four years ago, it lent $98,000 to another English town.

Many of this town's 7,300 residents are well-to-do. Ryman said, including bank managers, executives, big businessmen and members of the peerage.

"But we need the money because they are rather slow in paying their property taxes," he added.

Mt. Etna rumbled, thundered and hurled incandescent clouds of volcanic ash 3,000 feet into the air today on the fourth day of a new eruption.

The delegation carried the petition to the steps and presented it to Ralph B. Cowan (L—York-Humber), Robert C. Coates (PC—Cumberland), H. W. Herridge (NDP—Kootenay West) and Bert Leboe (SC—Cariboo).

Experts at the Catania Institute of Volcanology said the central crater apparently is brimful of lava again since it emptied in a violent, week-long eruption in mid-May. At that time huge quantities of lava poured down the west and south slopes of the volcano. There has been no lava outpouring in the current eruption.

A spokesman said the committee is co-operating with the Royal Canadian Legion, the IOE, the Canadian Corps and the Canadian Patriotic Society but has no political affiliation.
